

Education & Human Resource Development

Education develops critical thinking. This is vital in teaching a person how to use logic when making decisions and interacting with people (e.g. boosting creativity, enhancing time management). Education helps an individual meet basic job qualifications and makes them more likely to secure better jobs. Education helps to build character as you learn about different cultures, languages and how other people think as well as live. When you have an education you are able to fulfill the basic needs in life.

There are particular subjects that teach one particular their way in life like human resource development. Human development focuses on assisting students so they can have a better educational experience. Being able to have a rich and safe education is a human right.

Perhaps most importantly, studying human development makes it easier to spot possible signs of trouble. From problems with cognitive, social, or emotional development in early childhood to struggles later in life, being able to identify potential problems is important.

The education system of the state draws its strength from the aspiration of its young population for greater economic and social mobility associated with higher education.

The department associated with education in the state is committed to promote holistic learning amongst youths of GOA so as to enable them to lead meaningful lives in the society.
