Report	The 17th of September is celebrated as International Microorganism Day. To commemorate this day, the Department of Microbiology, St. Xavier's College, Goa organized a rangoli competition 'Colours under the Microscope'. This competition aimed to bring together creativity and artistic skill while promoting understanding and appreciation of the morphology of microorganisms. A team of 2 students had to create a rangoli of the morphology of any genus of microorganism. The rangoli were judged on relevance of theme, accuracy of the morphology, neatness, and aesthetics. In total there were 28 participants paired in teams of 2. The winners of the rangoli competition were Ms. Sohani Chari and Ms. Vidhya Gaonkar of T.Y. BSc. The second place was bagged by Ms. Mansi Thakur and Ms. Urmila Dewasi of F.Y. BSc. and the third place was awarded to Ms. Siya Palav and Ms. Siya Satardekar of T.Y. BSc. All teams created beautiful rangolis depicting the morphology of various microorganisms such as bacteria, algae, viruses and protozoa.
