Report	"Don't click beautiful things; click things beautifully." — Rajtilak Naik (photojournalist) JCI Panjim, in association with Prime Media Goa, organised an interactive photography workshop attended by students of the Department of Mass Communication and Journalism. Renowned Goan photographer Prasad Pankar and photojournalist Rajtilak Naik shared their expertise during the session. In "Framing the World", Prasad Pankar discussed compositions and framing, the importance of visualisation and the rules of photography. Rajtilak Naik

	elaborated on street photography, describing it as a "Story of You, Me, and They." Nikhil Satardekar, TYBA student said, "the workshop was very resourceful especially because they created a very conducive environment by providing a one on one interaction. Their excellence in photography was evident in their work as displayed by them to us "The photographers greatly emphasised upon the power of observation and symbolism being the key to making pictures meaningful. The students were given the opportunity to express their creative freedom in a photography competition conducted on the workshop premises, which was won by Asten D' souza, FYBA student. Prasad Pankar offered a free photography course as a prize. The inspiring and enriching workshop left the students with a newfound eye for communicating stories through pictures. objectives: to provide Industry base knowledge on photography by the professional photographers / photojournalists. brief description: FY and TY students of Mass Communication & Journalism were taken to attend workshop on photography workshop organized by Prime TV channel and JCI, Panjim. outcomes: student gained understanding on digital photography, got to discuss with the professionals, got hands on training and got enriched session. number of beneficiaries: 33 students and 2 faculty
