Report	The Department of History organized a guest lecture on Goa-Macau Relations on February 1 2025, as part of its initiative to internationalize education and provide students with a broader perspective on historical and contemporary global relations. The lecture was held from 11:45 am to 12:25 pm in Room No. 327, Arts Building. It was attended by 18 students. The guest speaker for the session was Mr. Vicente Coutinho Pereira, a senior officer in the Tourism Department of Macau. The objective of the lecture was to educate students about the historical and cultural ties between Goa and Macau, two regions with shared rich colonial legacies, and explore their interactions in terms of tourism, economy, and culture. The lecture aimed to enhance students' understanding of international relations, particularly the influence of colonial histories on modern-day global interactions.
