Report	On March 18, 2025, 33 students from the Mass Communication and Journalism department participated in an educational field trip to Chandor and Cansaulim Feni Distillery, Cazulo, as part of their Travel and Lifestyle Communication and Vlogging and Blogging courses. The trip aimed to provide hands-on learning experiences that enhanced students' knowledge of eco-tourism, entrepreneurship, and cultural exploration. In Chandor, students explored historical and cultural landmarks, including the Sara Fernandes House, ancient temple ruins, Chapel on the Monte, Three Kings Church, fort ruins by the river, and Mussoll Chapel. These experiences allowed students to connect deeply with the heritage of the region, fostering authentic storytelling. The students were guided by Venita Gomes, a local historian, who provided rich historical insights and narratives about each site. At Cazulo Feni Distillery, students actively engaged in the feni-making process, from cashew gathering to distillation, gaining insights into sustainable business practices and local entrepreneurship under the guidance of Mathew Almeida, the Master Distiller and Production Expert. The trip successfully met its educational objectives, with students submitting projects aligned with their course requirements.
