Report	On 27th march, our TYBCA class embarked on an insightful and enriching field trip to Loutolim. The trip was designed to improve our understanding of photography while also providing a cultural and social experience. We departed from the college at 8:30 AM and arrived at Loutolim after a pleasant journey. Upon arrival, we were briefed by a college professor on the basics of photography and how to improve our skills in capturing images effectively. With the knowledge gained from the briefing, we began our exploration by capturing photographs of a beautiful church and its adjoining cemetery. The serene and historic surroundings provided an excellent opportunity to practice our photography skills. Following this, we embarked on a short uphill walk to visit another beautiful chapel. The climb was rewarded with a breathtaking view of the area, offering a great subject for our photographs. After descending from the hill, we continued our journey by walking

	through the charming village of Loutolim. The village is known for its well-preserved old houses that reflect Goa's rich heritage. During this walk, we had the chance to admire the architecture and soak in the peaceful atmosphere. We also took a brief stop to enjoy a refreshing drink before proceeding to the next part of our trip. One of the most profound experiences of our trip was our visit to a cancer hospital. Here, we had the opportunity to interact with patients battling terminal cancer. Listening to their experiences was deeply moving and gave us a new perspective on life and resilience. After an eventful and meaningful day, we boarded our buses and headed back home. The field trip to Loutolim was not just an educational experience but also a journey of artistic discovery and emotional insight. It allowed us to improve our photography skills, appreciate the cultural beauty of Loutolim, and gain a deeper understanding of human strength in adversity. This trip will surely remain a memorable experience for all of us.
