Report	The Abbé Faria Postgraduate Department of Psychology organized a Christmas celebration for its postgraduate students with the objective of fostering social bonding, emotional well-being, and festive cheer within the academic community. The celebration witnessed enthusiastic participation from 36 postgraduate psychology students. The event was designed to reflect the true spirit of Christmas-joy, sharing, and togetherness. One of the key highlights was the Secret Santa exchange, which encouraged thoughtfulness, surprise, and positive interpersonal engagement among students. The celebration also included a potluck meal, where students contributed homemade and festive dishes, promoting cooperation and a sense of collective responsibility. A variety of sweet goodies further added to the celebratory ambience. Students actively participated in carol singing, which created a warm and inclusive atmosphere, reinforcing the emotional themes associated with Christmas such as hope, gratitude, and unity. The programme also featured games and dance performances, allowing students to express themselves creatively while experiencing relaxation and enjoyment beyond the formal academic setting. The Christmas celebration was well received by all participants and successfully created an environment of joy, laughter, and shared celebration. The event contributed meaningfully to building a cohesive departmental culture and spreading the spirit of Christmas. Overall, the celebration served as a reminder of the importance of community, compassion, and emotional well-being within academic spaces.
