Report	In an age of digital overload, the Literature Club celebrated National Book Lover's Day, annually observed on 9th August, with a unique Words Worth a World initiative, to revive the joy of reading and writing. The event witnessed an intimate space bringing together like-minded seventeen book enthusiasts from FY, SY, and TY students across disciplines. Participants read aloud quotes from books that had touched their hearts, recited original works and authored poems, and engaged in open discussions on genres ranging from fiction to inspirational literature. The interactive session encouraged exploration of new authors and perspectives, fostering a revival of the student literary community that may have been on a decline among the Gen Z. Earlier, the opening address was delivered by Ms. Vaibhavi Kerkar (SYBA), Club Secretary who acknowledged the dedication of Anshika Thakur, (TYBA) Club President and Joint Secretary, Sania Ruth D'souza (FYBA), for their valuable assistance.
